

Backwater Valve

Overview

A backwater valve is a one-way valve that is installed on the building's "Private Sewer Line" or the lateral sewer line. A professionally installed and maintained backwater valve will prevent the lateral sewer line from backing up with sewage entering the building. The requirements for installation can be found in International Building Code. In support of this code, all structures connected to the Town sewer system require an approved backwater valve.

Illustration (1) of a Backwater Valve:

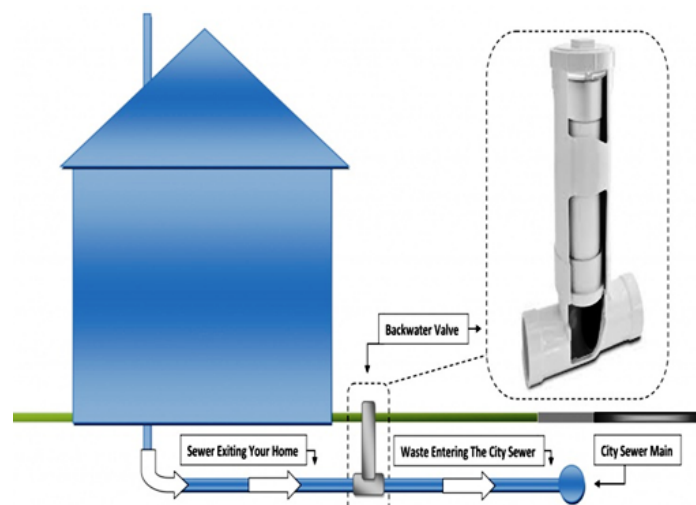

Illustration (2) of a Backwater Valve:

