Within the limits of space and budget, the LIBRARY'S objectives are to select, acquire, organize and preserve materials that will aid the individual in the pursuit of information, education, and cultural/recreational interests. The LIBRARY will continue to serve as a community resource and referral center by providing free access to comprehensive and quality collections of printed and other media materials to all persons.

In addition to meeting the needs of regular patrons, the LIBRARY will collect materials and search for methods of service that may attract members of the community who have not traditionally been library users.

Library staff will render services relevant to these expressed objectives.

The policies stated herein will serve as guidelines for the day-to-day operation and function of the LIBRARY. All Library staff and volunteers shall be informed of these policies prior to employment and shall follow them.

C. REVISIONS OF POLICIES

The LIBRARY policies herein may be revised, as circumstances requires, by the Library Director and adopted by the Town Council.

II. LIBRARY CARD PROCUREMENT

A. PURPOSE: To provide a system for identifying and contacting patrons and to facilitate the retrieval of lost or overdue library materials.

B. LIBRARY CARD PROCUREMENT POLICIES

Residents of Yavapai County with proper identification may procure a library card. We will accept any piece of mail addressed to the new patron, dated within one month of the application, along with a government issued or college issued picture ID. A utility bill or a lease/rental agreement and the like are acceptable proof of residency. Children 6 through 17 years of age must have the signed consent of a parent or legal guardian.

Non-county or part time (a minimum of three months) residents of Yavapai County may procure a library card in accordance with acceptable proof of residency and a twenty-five dollar ($25.00) refundable deposit.

III. CIRCULATION

A. PURPOSE: To provide guidelines for the circulation of library materials.

B. CIRCULATION POLICIES

Patrons must have a valid library card to check out any library materials.

Patrons will receive notice of overdue library materials. Overdue items exceeding the number set in our Network profile must be returned before additional materials can be borrowed. A fine will be assessed for each day that library materials are overdue. After the patron has been notified of overdue material(s) by a first notice, a final notice is sent followed by a notice of unresolved charges stating administration costs.

If the patron does not respond to the overdue notices, the collection action will be referred to a collection agency.

When loaned library materials are lost or damaged beyond repair, the patron will be assessed a replacement charge for the cost of each item and will be charged an administrative cost to cover the expense of ordering and processing the replacement. The patron's Library privileges will be suspended until the matter is resolved.

All patrons paying for lost materials will be notified that the LIBRARY will not provide a refund payment if the material(s) is located and returned by the patron at a later date.

The loan period for books and most library materials varies by agencies and item. The due date will be made apparent to the patron at checkout. Materials can be renewed to extend the due date for an additional loan period by a request in person, by telephone or online. Books or materials that are reserved for another patron, or have a No Renewal designation, may not be renewed.

Patrons and staff members use books in the reference collection for research and these do not circulate. Reference books often are very expensive, out of print, or multi-volume works; these materials must be maintained in the library for continuous public access. When a patron needs more time to study reference materials, photocopying of the data is suggested.

The Library's professional collection of trade-type books, catalogues, etc. are not generally available to patrons, but may be used for reference by authorization of the Library Director.

IV. STATISTICS AND RECORDS

With the goals of purpose, quality and economy, the collection of the LIBRARY will be built to meet the needs and interests of the community following specific guidelines.

Textbooks and curriculum materials are generally held to be the responsibility of the schools and are only purchased by the LIBRARY if they are standard works in the field.

The acceptance of donated materials will be governed by the same criteria applied to the selection of purchased materials.

Donated materials not selected for inclusion in the collection will be transferred to an ongoing sale area.

LIBRARY BILL OF RIGHTS

16 of 28

The American Library Association affirms that all libraries are forums for information and ideas, and that the following basic policies should guide their services.

Books and other library resources should be provided for the interest, information and enlightenment of all people of the community the library serves. Materials should not be excluded because of origin, background, or views of those contributing to their creation.

Libraries should provide materials and information presenting all points of view on current and historical issues. Materials should not be prescribed or removed because of partisan or doctrinal disapproval.

Libraries should challenge censorship in the fulfillment of their responsibility to provide information and enlightenment.

Libraries should cooperate with all persons and groups concerned with resisting abridgment of free expression and free access to ideas.

A person's right to use a library should not be denied or abridged because of origin, age, background or views.

Libraries, which make exhibit spaces and meeting rooms available to the public they serve, should make such facilities available on an equitable basis, regardless of the belief or affiliations of individuals or groups requesting their use.

APPENDIX

A-2

FREEDOM TO VIEW

The First Amendment to the constitution of the United States protects the FREEDOM TO VIEW, along with the freedom to speak, to hear, and to read. In a free society, there is no place for censorship of any medium of expression. Therefore, we affirm these principles.

It is in the public interest to provide the broadest possible access to films and other audiovisual materials because they have proven to be among the effective means for the communication of ideas. Liberty of circulation is essential to insure the constitutional guarantee of freedom of expression.

It is in the public interest to provide for our audiences, films and other audiovisual materials, which represent a diversity of views and expression. Selection of a work does not constitute or imply agreement with or approval of the content.

It is our professional responsibility to resist the constraint of labeling or prejudging a film on the basis of the moral, religious or political beliefs of the producer or filmmaker or on the basis of controversial content.

It is our professional responsibility to contest vigorously, by all lawful means, every encroachment upon the public's freedom to view.

APPENDIX

A-3 (sheet 1 of 4)

FREEDOM TO READ

The freedom to read is essential to our democracy. It is continuously under attack. Private groups and public authorities in various parts of the country are working to remove books from sale, to censor textbooks, to label "controversial" books or authors, and to purge libraries. These actions apparently rise from a view that our national tradition of free expression is no longer valid; that censorship and suppression are needed to avoid the subversion of politics and the corruption of morals. We, as citizens devoted to the use of books and as librarians and publishers responsible for disseminating them, wish to assert the public interest in the preservation of the freedom to read.

We are deeply concerned about these attempts at suppression. Most such attempts rest on a denial of the fundamental premise of democracy; that the ordinary citizen, by exercising his critical judgment, will accept the good and reject the bad. The censors, public and private assume that they should determine what is good and what is bad for their fellow-citizens.

We trust Americans to recognize propaganda and to reject it. We do not believe they need the help of censors to assist them in this task. We do not believe they are prepared to sacrifice their heritage of a free press in order to be protected against what others think may be bad for them. We believe Americans still favor free enterprise in ideas and expression.

We are aware, of course, that books are not alone in being subjected to efforts at suppression. We are aware that these efforts are related to a larger pattern of pressures being brought against education, the press, films, radio and television. The problem is not only one of actual censorship. The shadow of fear cast by these pressures leads, we suspect, to an even larger voluntary curtailment of expression by those who seek to avoid controversy.

Such pressure toward conformity is perhaps natural to a time of uneasy change and pervading fear. This is especially true when so many of our apprehensions are directed against an ideology, the expression of a dissident idea becomes a thing feared in itself, and we tend to move against it as against a hostile deed, with suppression. And yet, suppression is never more dangerous than in such a time of social tension. Freedom has given the United States the elasticity to endure strain. Freedom keeps open the path of novel and creative solutions, and enables change to come by choice. Every silencing of a heresy, any enforcement of orthodoxy, diminishes the toughness and resilience of our society and leaves it less able to deal with stress.

Now, as always in our history, books are among our greatest instruments of freedom. They are almost the only means for making generally available ideas or manners of expression that can initially comment only a small audience. They are the natural medium for the new idea and the untried voice from which came the original contributions to social growth. They are essential to the extended discussion which serious thought requires, and to the accumulation of knowledge and ideas into organized collections.

APPENDIX

A-3 (sheet 2 of 4)

We believe that free communication is essential to the preservation of a free society and a creative culture.

We believe that these pressures towards conformity present the danger of limiting the range and variety of inquiry and expression on which our democracy and our culture depend.

We believe that every American community must jealously guard the freedom to publish and to circulate, in order to preserve its own freedom to react.

We believe that publishers and librarians have a profound responsibility to give validity to that freedom to read by making it possible for the readers to choose freely from a variety of offerings.

The freedom to read is guaranteed by the United States Constitution. Those with faith in free men will stand firm on these constitutional guarantees of essential rights and will exercise the responsibilities that accompany these rights.

We therefore affirm these propositions:

It is in the public interest for publishers and librarians to make available the widest diversity of views and expressions, including those which are unorthodox or unpopular with the majority.

Creative thought is by definition new, and what is new is different. The bearer of every new thought is a rebel until his idea is refined and tested. Totalitarian systems attempt to maintain their power by the ruthless suppression of any concept, which challenges the established orthodoxy. The power of a democratic system to adapt to change is vastly strengthened by the freedom of its citizens to choose widely from among conflicting opinions offered freely to them. To stifle every nonconforming idea at birth would mark the end of the democratic process. Furthermore, only through the constant activity of weighing and selecting can be democratic mind attaining the strength demand by times like these.

We need to know not only what we believe but also why we believe it.

Publishers, librarians and booksellers do not need to endorse every idea or presentation contained in the books they make available. It would conflict with the public interest for them to establish their own political, moral, or aesthetic views as a standard for determining what books should be published or circulated.

Publishers and librarians serve the educational process by helping to make available knowledge and ideas required for the growth of the mind and the increase of learning. They do not foster education by imposing as mentors and patterns of their own thought. The people should have the freedom to read and consider a broader range of ideas than those that may be held by any single librarian or publisher or government or church. It is wrong that what one man can read should be confined to what another thinks proper.

APPENDIX

A-3 (sheet 3 of 4)

It is contrary to the public interest for publishers or librarians to determine the acceptability of a book on the basis of the personal history or political affiliation of the author.

A book should be judged as a book, no art or literature can flourish if it is to be measured by the political views or private lives of its creators. No society of free man can flourish which draws up fists of writers to whom it will not listen, whatever they may have to say.

There is no place in our society for efforts to coerce the taste of others, to confine adults to the reading matter deemed suitable for adolescents, or to inhibit the efforts of writers to achieve artistic expression.

To some, much of modern literature is shocking. But is not much of life itself shocking? We cut off literature at the source if we prevent writers from dealing with the stuff of life.

Parents and teachers have a responsibility to prepare the young to meet the diversity of experiences in life to which they will be exposed, as they have a responsibility to help them learn to think critically for themselves. These are affirmative responsibilities, not to be discharged simply by preventing children from reading works for which they are not yet prepared.

In these matters taste differs, and taste cannot be legislated; nor can machinery be devised which will suit the demands of one group without limiting the freedom of others.

It is not in the public interest to force a reader to accept with any book the prejudgment of a label characterizing the book or author as subversive or dangerous.

The idea of labeling presupposes to existence of individuals or groups with wisdom to determine by authority what is good or bad for the citizen. It presupposes that each individual must be directed in making up his mind about the ideas he examines. But Americans do not need others to do their thinking for them.

It is the responsibility of publishers and librarians, as guardians of the people's freedom to read, to contrast encroachments upon that freedom by individuals or groups seeking to impose their own standards or tastes upon the community at large.

It is inevitable in the give and take of the democratic process that the political, the moral, or the aesthetic concepts of an individual or group will occasionally collide with those of another individual or group. In a free society individuals are free to determine for themselves what they wish to read and each group is free to determine what it will recommend to its freely associated members. But no group has the right to take the law into its own hands, and to impose its own concept of politics or morality upon other members of a democratic society. Freedom is no freedom if it is accorded only to the accepted and inoffensive.

It is the responsibility of publishers and librarians to give full meaning to the freedom to read by providing books that enrich the Quality and diversity of thought and expression. By the exercise of this affirmative responsibility, they can demonstrate that the answer to a bad book is a good one; the answer to a bad idea is a good one.

APPENDIX

A-3 (sheet 4 of 4)

The freedom to read is of little consequence when expended on the trivial; it is frustrated when the reader cannot obtain matter fit for his purpose. What is needed is not only the absence of restraint, but the positive provision of opportunity for the people to read the best that has been thought and sold.

Books are the major channels by which the intellectual inheritance is handed down, and the principal means of its testing and growth.

The defense of their freedom and integrity, and the enlargement of their service to society, require of a publishers and librarians the utmost of their faculties, and deserve of all citizens the fullest of their support.

We state these propositions neither lightly nor as easy generalizations. We here stake out a lofty claim for the value of books. We do so because we believe that they are good, possess of enormous variety and usefulness, worthy of cherishing and keeping free.

We realize that the application of the propositions may mean the dissemination of ideas and manners of expression that are repugnant to many persons. We do not state these propositions in the comfortable belief that what people read is unimportant. We believe rather that what people read is deeply important; that ideas can be dangerous; but that the suppression of ideas is fatal to a democratic society. Freedom itself is a dangerous way of life, but it is ours.
